STEVE MACKAY
"THE PRISONER"
Song Giveaway and T"

2013 has been yet another strange chapter in the incredible musical voyage of Steve Mackay. After wrapping up a new album, he and his Stooges band-mates are touring the world once again. He joined his long time collaborators The Violent Femmes for a reunion show, the live Snakesfinger album "History of the Blues" is going to be re-issued, and any free moment he is ready to join any of his numerous collaborators from 16 years of work with his "Radon Ensemble".

Preparing for our first release as Polyglot, "Sometimes Like This I Talk" we were thrilled when Iggy Pop offered to contribute vocals to a song and later used it for a feature in the New York Times Style "Godfather's of Glam" article. However, not being ones to brag...we credited his performance as Xipi Jim, an old Michigan nickname. Unfortunately, the song received little attention and surprisingly the limited edition T" has not even sold out.

With our friends at WTMU and the Free Music Archive, we proudly offer a free listen to "The Prisoner" by Steve Mackay, with Mike Watt, Henry Banner, Kaminsky and Iggy Pop. Please check out the other artists newly featured in the Polyglot Archive as well.

Feel free to contact Polyglot with questions about the artists. scott@polyglotagency.org
